EYE WITNESSES HEARD IN LEE MURDER TRIAL

TESTIMONY OF EARL KEYES FEATURE OF WEDNESDAY SESSION

Crowd Packs Court Room—Mentality May Be Defense

Earl Keyes, colored, at whose home Patrolman Charles Simms was slain, was placed on the witness stand by the state Wednesday morning in the murder trial of Frank Lee, and gave a coherent story of the events leading up to the shooting.

He failed to wilt or diverge from his original story under fierce cross examination by Judge E. D. Smith, counsel for Lee.

Corporal William Thompson and Private Harold Jenks, members of Company L, 147th Infantry, Ohio National Guard, who trapped and arrested Lee at Trebels after an all night search, testified for the state also Wednesday.

Mrs. Minnie Hamilton, Cedarville, another important state witness, whose complaint to police about Lee beating a board bill, led to the shooting, also testified and identified Lee.

Ten state witnesses gave evidence Tuesday afternoon. The early witnesses placed on the stand by Prosecutor J. Carl Marshall gave evidence to show the former policeman had been slain, the manner of his wounds, that he was in police uniform at the time of the murder and under what circumstances Lee was arrested for the crime.

FANS CHASE HEAT

Jurors, attorneys, court attendants and spectators at the murder trial of Frank Lee, now going on in Common Pleas Court, were supplied fans Tuesday as relief against the intense heat in the court room.

With a large gallery of spectators, the humidity filled air in the room became oppressive during the proceedings. However, unlike the Scopes evolution trial in Tennessee, attorneys did not discard their coats during the session.

Lee appeared to suffer from the heat but ignored a pile of fans left near him.

Rapidly with which the trial progressed Tuesday led to the belief the state would conclude its direct examination Wednesday afternoon. The court room was packed with spectators during the taking of evidence Tuesday, in spite of the heat.

Judge E. D. Smith, counsel for Lee by appointment by the court, indicated Tuesday he would place Lee on the stand in his own defense. "Lee cannot read or write and I doubt very much if he fully realizes he is on trial for his life," Judge Smith said.

Counsel said Lee was unable to furnish him with names and addresses of several character witnesses. Indications of the defense that will be followed to save Lee from conviction, were given by Judge Smith in his examination of witnesses Tuesday. This defense may take the course of showing Lee is mentally deficient and that Patrolman Simms was not on duty nor armed with a warrant at the time of the shooting.

Witnesses called by the State Tuesday were: E. F. Canby, photographer, who made photographs showing the fatal wounds; Chief of Police M. E. Graham and Motorcycle Policeman Peter Shagin who were with Simms when he expired. Sheriff Morris Sharp, Chief Deputy Sheriff John Baughn; Special Deputy Sheriff Oliver Beffen; J. C. Johnson, undertaker; Patrolman Ed Craig; Coroner R. L. Haines and Dr. H. C. Messenger.

Chief Graham admitted under cross examination he did not order Simms to arrest Lee. Other witnesses identified the clothing of the slain officer to show he was in uniform and Shagin testified he found the officers' gun in his pocket, to indicate he had not drawn it when shot.

In his opening statement Prosecutor Marshall said he would introduce five witnesses who saw Lee at the Earl Keyes home where Simms was shot and a number of others who saw Lee escape and helped in the pursuit. Judge Smith did not make an opening statement.

Court adjourned at 4:30 o'clock Tuesday when the first list of witnesses summoned for the state was exhausted. Judge R. L. Gowdy who is presiding, permitted jurors to go to their homes after enjoining them not to discuss the case. It is expected the case will go to the jury Thursday.

NO ARRESTS MADE IN ROBBERY OF TOBACCO WHOLESALE STORE HERE

A careful re-check of the stock by employees following the robbery of the wholesale warehouse of the Charles I. Kuntz Company, South Whiteman Street Monday night, shows the previous value of $1,000 placed on the loot in cigarettes obtained, to be slightly exaggerated.

Approximately 140,000 cigarettes of popular make contained in fourteen carton boxes were obtained by the thieves, valued at $900. It was first thought a quantity of cigars had also been stolen.

Police are working on several clues, but no arrests have been made. It is announced.

The stolen goods was carted away in a commercial body truck. It is believed and can be easily disposed of in small quantities.

Similar robberies of large quantities of cigarettes were reported in Dayton and Springfield recently.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 12.—A. Seely, of Camp Chase, a local suburb, will exhibit at his 40th state fair when he displays in the machinery department of the state fair, August 31 to September 5.

Mr. Seely exhibited first at Franklin Park in Columbus when that location was the site for holding the annual exposition in this city.

The veteran exhibitor recalled how discouraged exhibitors were when the State Fair first moved to its present location. Heavy rains and inadequate facilities at that time did not give much promise for the present extensive grounds and permanent buildings.

He won first in the open class at the Clark County Fair and in the club work at the Greene County Fair his entry took first and sweepstakes positions and first in the open class.

WAITER TOSSED FROM NINTH STORY WINDOW BY SINGING ACTORS

Victim Of Bizarre Crime May Die Following Hurts.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—A police station just west of the white light district and a hospital a few blocks below that realm of mad parties and bizarre crimes, today held the principals in a tragedy so unusual as to grip the attention of blasé Broadway.

Sol Trencher, waiter in Jack's eating house in the Forties, lay dying in Bellevue hospital, his skull fractured, both legs broken and suffering from internal injuries. The trio charged with hurling Trencher from the ninth floor of the Hotel Flanders sat in the Forty-Seventh street police station, gradually losing the gaiety with which they greeted first questions of the police.

They were: Dr. Joseph A. Pauline, known to vaudeville as "Pauline the magician," in whose room the party was staged. He is a man in the fifties and told officers he had a wife and seventeen year old daughter living in Tuscarora, N. Y.

Jack Phillips and Henry Case, his young companions, who told police they were actors.

As detectives reconstructed the tragedy from Trencher's broken story and the laughing replies of the three actors, the waiter brought steaks and coffee to Pauline's room at a late hour last night.

The actors disputed the amount of the check, Trencher said. He offered to return to the cafe to have the check verified, but one of the men said to him:

"Oh, no, you want. You'll go out the window."

Then the three joined hands and danced around him, singing in falsetto voices:

"Out of the window you must go, you must go, you must go."

One of the windows of Pauline's room faced a sheer drop of nine stories to the street. The other was thirty feet above the roof of the Cort theatre. It was through this window and to the roof of the theatre that Trencher hurtled. In falling, his body struck the iron scaffolding supporting a water tank. Despite his injuries, which physicians said almost preclude hope of recovery, he was able to crawl to the edge of the roof over a coping and part way down a fire escape. Then a patrolman, attracted by his evident plight, came to his aid.

Detectives who broke into Pauline's room said they found the trio dancing in a room around a room littered with scraps of food and grease from Trencher's overturned tray, and singing as they danced, the same silly song which had preceded Trencher's plunge to probable death.

WRIGLEY BUILDING BASEBALL PARK IN LOS ANGELES, CAL.

Los Angeles, Aug. 12.—Baseball deluxe! Los Angeles will have it after September 15, when the new $1,100,000 home of the Los Angeles Club, of the Pacific Coast League, owned by William Wrigley, Jr., of Chicago and Los Angeles is completed.

The new park is said to be the most artistic in the United States. The grandstand and bleachers, seating 30,000, are entirely of steel and concrete. The diamond is genuine turtle back. The left and right field walls of brick are 340 feet from the home plate and the center field fence is 411 feet from the plate.

Under present plans the new park will be used by the Vernon Club, Los Angeles second home team. Two club houses as well as a house for the visiting club, will be located under the grandstand.

A feature of the new park will be the barring of all advertising signs. Wrigley has taken a stand that no single advertisement of any kind will be permitted to mar the beauty of the structure.

Wally Hood, leading hitter of the Los Angeles Club, was said to have induced Wrigley to bar signs in the park claiming that they interfere with the batting eyes of players. In some parks on the coast circuit according to Hood, advertising signs are so numerous that many come directly in a line with pitched balls, making it impossible to get a "bead" on the sphere.

The signs also interfere with fast fielding of hot line drives and low flies it is claimed by Hood.

At the entrance to the new baseball home will be a tower, nine stories high. J. H. Patrick, president of the Los Angeles Club, will have a floor of the tower for his use and newspaper men have been assigned to quarters on the fifth floor.

Widow, Now Viscountess, Continues Fight for $4,000,000 Gould Estate

Guinevere Sinclair Gould, now a viscountess as a result of her marriage to the Viscount Dunsford, heir of the Earl of Middleton, will continue her fight for $4,000,000 of the estate of George J. Gould, whom she married six months before he died. Her three children, born out of wedlock, were recently granted an annual income of $10,000 each from the Gould millions. The viscountess is 42, her husband 37. She was an actress, English born, when she met Gould.

AMERICANS REJECT PROPOSAL OF BELGIAN ENVOYS ON DEBT PROBLEM

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—Their first proposition rejected by the American debt commissioners, the Belgian envoys met again with the Americans at the treasury today to resume discussions of Belgium's capacity to pay the $481,000,000 borrowed from 1917 to 1919.

Neither the Americans nor the Belgian commissioners would reveal the details of Belgium's initial proposal, but it is understood that it involved a differentiation between war and post war debts. The Belgians consider that money advanced while hostilities were in progress went for "a common cause" of defeating Germany, and as such should be considered in the light of munitions and other war material.

A Belgian proposal that the United States accept German reparation bonds also met with scant success and it was understood, although it could not be confirmed, that the visitors put this proposal formally before the commission. These preliminaries disposed of, it was expected today that the negotiations would proceed rapidly and be successfully concluded within ten days.

Whether the new park will be used this season for more than a formal opening and several exhibition games will depend on whether Los Angeles or Vernon wins the pennant in the Coast race.

Should either club cop the honors the post-season series planned with the winner of the American Association pennant and the leaders in the International League will be played in the Los Angeles park.

Present plans call for a postseries in the East between the American Association and International leaders the winner of that series to journey to California to meet the Pacific Coast Champions.

Because of the warm weather prevailing here in the winter the series could be played either in October or November without fear of cold or rain.

MAY LOCATE IN OHIO

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 12.—The proposed national headquarters and laboratory of the American Pharmaceutical Association may be located in Ohio, if Buckeye state delegates to the association's national convention in Des Moines on August 24, next, are successful in their fight to have Columbus, Cleveland or Cincinnati selected as the site, members of the association here declared. Fred J. Mery, vice mayor of Toledo; Prof. Edward Spease, of Western Reserve, Cleveland, and Theodore Watterstrom, Columbus, will represent the Ohio association at the convention.

HELD OUT ON HER

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Aug. 12.—A woman plaintiff in an alimony hearing astonished Common Pleas Judge Cowen by stating that her husband "lied" to her about his financial affairs. She said she had allowed her husband thirty-five cents out of his wages for "lunch money." When he returned home from work, she declared, she heard money jingling in his pockets. Accusing him of either going without his lunch, or not paying for it, she searched his pockets after he went to bed and found—two dimes which, she asserted, constituted "proof of his untruthfulness."

LACK OF IMPORTANT ISSUES RESULTS IN FEW BALLOTS CAST

Vote Only 8 Per Cent In Some Cities Count Indicates

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 12.—Unusual apathy among Ohio voters, it was disclosed today, resulted in a very light vote being cast at the primary elections throughout the state Tuesday.

Election officials here were informed that the vote in some districts was as low as 8 percent of the total registration of voters. Absence of important political issues was credited with responsibility for this situation.

Columbus voters nominated two candidates for presiding judge of the municipal court, three candidates for municipal judge and six candidates for council. Those nominated here are:

Judicial ticket, for presiding Judge Fred J. Miller, Republican. Dean C. Throckmorton, Democrat, for municipal judge Edward F. Berry and Harry B. Holmes, Republicans, and Frank Tossey, Democrat.

Councilman ticket: Fred P. Zimpher and Scott Wehe, Republicans and Henry Worley, Democrat (all re-nominated); Mary C. Green, Independent; E. Edward Jones, Republican and John C. McIntyre, Democrat.

CLEVELAND, O., AUG. 12.—Cleveland voters, by a majority of 804 defeated an amendment to substitute the ward system of voting for city councilmen for the present proportional representation system, according to complete returns from Tuesday's election announced today.

The vote was:
Against amendment: 21,042.
For amendment: 20,238.

Councilman A. R. Hatton, author of the present plan of council selection, declared today the vote showed complete defeat for Republican and Democratic "bosses" who were aligned for the amendment.

CHILLICOTHE, O., AUG. 12.—Victory of former Mayor Walter S. Story for the Republican nomination for mayor at Tuesday primaries over Addison P. Minshall, 60, Mayor, was interpreted today as a defeat for the organization with which Frank B. Maulier of this city, a Republican member of the state utilities commission, is identified. Maulier and the organization. It was claimed, backed Mayor Minshall for renomination.

MARION, Aug. 12.—John A. Abel was nominated for mayor in a field of six Democratic candidates and Earl Hazen was the nominee on the Republican ticket for mayor.

Less than a third of the registered vote was polled.

BLAST BELIEF SEX OF EGG IS TOLD BY WEIGHT AND SHAPE

Washington, Aug. 12.—If you are one of the many who believe that the long, slim heavy hen eggs are the ones which hatch out the male chicks, and that the smaller ones are the ones which produce the future layers of the flock, you need to revise your opinion on the matter.

This is the answer of the poultry experts of the department of Agriculture to the continuous stream of inquiries pouring into Secretary Jardine's office relative to determining the sex of the chick in the shell by the size, shape or weight of the egg.

"It just isn't being done," the experts say. That is, not in a practical way, at least. The scientist is able to identify the sex of a chick in the shell after 7 or 8 days of incubation, however.

Therefore, you may as well leave your tape measure, scales, calipers and other units at home when you go forth to purchase a "setting of eggs" from your poultry breeder and rely solely on Mother Nature to give you a fifty-fifty deal in the matter of sex.

Because of the important bearing on the practical aspect of the poultry industry which the ability to select hatching eggs according to the sex desired would have, if such were possible, a number of investigators have made studies concerning the sex-ratio situation in the domestic fowl. Recently Dr. M. A. Jull, poultry husbandman of the Department of Agriculture completed some observations in which he concludes that there is no correlation between the length, shape or weight of the egg and the sex of the chick hatched from it.

He has also made studies to determine whether there is a correlation ratio with the same negative result, says Dr. Jull, that the greater the number of eggs which a hen lays before being put into the breeding pen, the larger will be the proportion of females produced by her eggs. The practical poultryman may be able to take advantage of this fact to some extent by making his selection of eggs for hatching with reference to the hen's period of production.

HOBBIES OF THE GREAT AND NEAR GREAT AS TOLD BY NEWS WRITER

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the seventeenth of a series of intimate articles which reveal the national political figure as a "brother under the skin" to the man behind the plebeian, the white collar worker or the day laborer. Others will follow.

SENATOR WILLIAM BRUCE
Litterateur, savant, linguist, Senator William Cabell Bruce (D. of Md.) brought to the Senate an erudition that bids fair to win him a niche in the Congressional Hall of Fame.
The Senator's command of literature was one of the outstanding surprises of the last session of Congress. He came unheralded to take his seat. In his first speech he amazed his colleagues by quoting boldly, freely and almost ad lib. from classical literature. In the end he won their round-eyed admiration, a certain amount of awe and an unpolluted vote for the Hall of Fame.

To the Senate it was a treat; with the Senator a hobby.
For the "ain'ts," the double negatives and the slangy jargon of political debate Bruce substituted the flowery language of the poets. In truth, his speeches were a breath of mountain air to a Senate saturated with the slipshod rhetoric of politicians. In every address Bruce inserted dozens of quotations from the classics, and he did it with a fluency that marked him as a scholar.

LOVES LITERATURE
To those who knew the Senator before he donned a toga it was no surprise. His love of literature has been a hobby since childhood. His education started on his family plantation in Virginia, where his father kept a choice library of French and English classics. The youth took the books into an old-fashioned garden, where his classroom was a shady bow.

At the same time he became a student of the soil, which led to the Senator's present love of amateur farming. In Maryland he maintains his country place, with a garden and crops and all the agricultural side issues. He farms for the love of it and is, probably the only farmer in the country who obtains pleasure by losing money at it.

Of his childhood training, Bruce says:
"In my father's library, I early contracted a love for good, wholesome books, which enables me to affirm that if I have ever known a vacant moment in my life it has only been when I could not reach out and place my hand upon such a book."

TOOK TO WOODS
"In my father's fields and forests I formed a passionate predilection for reading, might almost be likened to shooting that, but for my addition to the spirit which caused Louis XVI of France—when compelled to forego a day's hunting—to enter in his journal simply the word, "Nothing." A Virginian was early defined to be a man who would walk a mile to catch a horse with which to ride half a mile. Strangely enough, this love for horseback riding has never been one of my characteristics, though I early became familiar with horses.

"But all my life walking has been a form of exercise for which I have had the keenest zest."
Of his farming hobby, the Senator says he would, like the Douglas of Scotland "rather hear the lark sing

FAMOUS MEXICAN MINES RE-OPENED AT SAN GERONIMO

NOGALES, Arizona, Aug. 12.—Idle for more than three years, the famous old San Geronimo mines, located near Posa Sonora, Mexico, held forth promise of again being worked, according to Melvin Palmer Dalton, New York financier and operator, who recently paid this city a visit while en route to the South on a tour of inspection of his properties.

The San Geronimo mine, one of the most famous in the history of Sonora mining, first came into the limelight in 1909, when more than $3,000,000 in free silver ores were extracted and shipped to United States smelters. For two years it was worked under the supervision of Dalton.

In 1911 petty revolutionists caused trouble and work was greatly curtailed. In 1912 the mine was definitely closed, due to the Madero-Diaz revolution. Reopened in 1919, it continued operating until three years ago, when, due to depression in the metal market, it was once again closed.

Operated many years ago by the Spanish padres, the San Geronimo perhaps bears one of the most fascinating stories of any of the older mines in Northern Sonora. It receives its name from the fact that Chief Geronimo of the Apaches, when chased out of Arizona by General O. O. Howard, took refuge in the mountains surrounding the mine.

According to the present plans the property, valued at more than two and one-half millions, will reopen the latter part of August, financed by Eastern capitalists.

Don't go on feeling up one day and down the next—hardly sick but never well—losing "pep," punch and ambition. Hearty eaters are the red-blooded men and women. Enjoy your food! Get back your strength and energy! Reclaim yourself before it is too late! People in a physically run-down condition are an easy prey to disease.

S.S.S. is what is needed. Your blood needs purifying. Your blood-cells supply the energy which keeps your body well and fit. S.S.S. aids Nature in supplying new red-blood-cells—the sparks that rejoin your system. Carefully selected, scientifically proportioned and prepared herbs and barks make up S.S.S.—the great blood purifier which gives Nature a helping hand.

Get back the lost appetite, the missing vitality, the keen, sparkling eyes, that look of determination. S.S.S. will give you more energy, vitality and vigor and a more up and going appearance.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

FAMOUS FANS

MODISH MITZI—They Found One Suitcase!

Found—one of the six suitcases, hat boxes, bags, etc. that went astray and nearly wrecked our heroine's wardrobe, depressed her spirits and suppressed her plans. But here, in the nick of time just as Mitzi is wondering what to put on over her lace and embroidery comby—arrives one of her lost suitcases.

What's in it? Well, her cretonne sports outfit for one thing. That will carry her through the day very stunningly. The parasol and the umbrella are of the same cretonne design. The handle of the umbrella is really a cigarette holder.

The cretonne coat is virtually a coat of many colors. A floral design is so very appropriate thinks Mitzi for the country. Now where are Polly and Adelaide? Mitzi feels with a change of raiment that she can be more sociable besides the girls haven't seen an outfit like this before.

And so they haven't. Polly is rapturou over the square cretonne parasol and pretty soon Mitzi will show them how the amber handle unscrews and contains her favorite brand of cigarettes. The smartness any suit case holds should never be judged by its cubic contents.

Miss Mary Alken, of Marissa, Ill., is visiting Miss Elizabeth Wheeler and Miss Edith Davidson. The girls were classmates last year at Monmouth College.

THE IRONICAL SCOTT CASE.

ABOUT the time that Russell Scott, condemned to die for the murder of a clerk in a drug store hold up and adjudged insane after thrice slipping through the hangman's noose, was leaving Chicago for the asylum, the father of the murdered boy appeared at detective bureau with what seemed to be a strange request.

He asked for the clothes that his son was wearing on the night that he was slain. In reply to questions he said that he did not want the clothes as "keepsakes" but to wear, so that he "would be better dressed when he tried to get a new job."

He explained that he had been ill and that his daughter, since the murder of his son, had been the sole support of the family. At present the family is in sore straits.

Scott may be insane, now. In fact it is doubtful if any man who is under sentence to die can be anything but insane when the actual time for his execution arrives. The mental strain must be such as to cause insanity in nearly every case.

It is not the purpose here to discuss whether or not such men ought to be hung or to discuss capital punishment. Be those things as they may, the fact now remains that Russell Scott, murderer, is to be taken away to become a burden on the state and live in physical comfort, likely until he dies.

The family of the man killed by Scott, having been sinned against, have to fight a hard battle to keep the grim spectres of hunger and cold from the home.

There is a terrible irony in the murdered being fed, while the family of the murdered man goes hungry.

Scott seems to be sane enough in many ways. He ought to be made to work within the confines of an institution, at some occupation that would prove enumerative, if even in a small way, and the money he earns ought to be turned over to the murdered man's family.

And this not for a year or two years but for Scott's life.

FORD AND HIS FLEET.

"ON the face of the transaction," says the Dayton Journal, Henry Ford made an excellent deal when he bought 200 shipping board vessels, which originally cost more than $100,000,000, for $1,706,000. But the chances he assumes are commensurate with the shrinkage, and only time and experience can show whether or not the bargain is as good as it appeared to be when made." The paper goes on to say:

"Ford is taking a collection of ships at practically their junk value. He frankly explained this in his bid, which was the best of the lot submitted. Other bidders, too, were not optimistic over their chances to make sound vessels out of the ships which have been tied up at wharves since war days, a fact evidenced by the conservative bids they made. If Ford can take this collection and get even 10 per cent. seaworthy ships out of the number without making any big expenditures, he will have made a fair bargain.

"But the use of the ships in the end will determine whether Ford made a wise move in going into the shipping business. His various plants permit him to become his own shipper for two-way freight and thus give him a big advantage in the beginning. But if he has any considerable number of ships in operation he will have to get other business to keep them going and here he will meet some strenuous competition.

"The people would like to see their greatest manufacturer make a success in his new business adventure. If he can establish the nucleus of the great American merchant marine, his success will attract other bidders for the nation's ships if it is decided to sell them and better prices for the vessels can be obtained. On the other hand if it is decided to remain in the shipping business the government can use to better advantage and far more profitably a few great ships rather than maintain hundreds of ships still in its possession, although only one-third of the number are in operation.

JUST FOLKS

FISHERMAN DAN'S IDEA

"It's nice out here," said Fisherman Dan, away from the noise and the clatter of man. For the babbling stream is a sweeter babble. Than a man's proud words or a woman's gabble. And the gull that soars in the summer sky Looks better than motor cars rushing by.

"That patch of woods which you see off there is a finer sight than a city square. Now there's more of sinner in me than saint. But here are pictures no man can paint. And with all the pains which man's skill can take. There are things out here which no man can make. I often get tired of the sound of words. But a sweeter language God gave the birds;

And the robins a handsomer raiment wear. Than any the tailors for man prepare. And where is the courage that can surpass That of a fighting trout or bass?

"You're a city chap and your books you've read. But I've had to think for myself instead. And I don't see a thing which a man has done. That equals the glory of moon or sun. And the trees and the clouds and the winds," said Dan, "All tell me how feeble is boastful man."

"How can I cook rice so that each kernel stands alone?" asks many a bride. The following recipe is an adaptation of the Chinese and Japanese methods of cooking rice. Wash one cup of rice in several waters and allow it to stand overnight in water. In the morning drain off the water, put the rice into a large kettle and add to it two cups of cold water and one teaspoon of salt. I say "large" kettle so that there will be plenty of room for the steam. Put on a tin cover and let come to a boil. Stir once at the start, then do not stir again. The heat should not be intense enough to make the rice boil over. In 20 minutes the rice should be cooked (as the steam helps). Now remove the cover, put a folded clean cloth over the top of the kettle, and replace the tin lid. Stand the entire kettle in a pan of boiling water to keep the rice hot until you are ready to serve it. It is necessary to have it stand in this way, for a minute or two, after cooking, so that the steam may do its work. The dry folded cloth is put between kettle and lid to absorb excess moisture, thereby leaving each kernel dry and distinct, yet moist enough.

The Oriental enjoys rice served by itself. But the Occidental prefers it in combination with some distinct flavor. For example, the following sauce makes rice a delicious delicacy:

Italian Tomato Sauce: Put four tablespoons of butter into a saucepan and when melted add three-quarters of a cup of finely-cut raw onion. Sauté till the vegetable is a light brown and partly tender, then add one-half cup of minced green sweet peppers, one-half cup of grated or minced raw turnip, one-half cup of raw carrot put through the food chopper, one teaspoon of salt, a stalk of celery finely chopped, and one more tablespoon of butter. Let cook over mild heat till all these ingredients are tender, then add two large cups of either stewed fresh tomatoes or canned tomatoes, and let continue to simmer for five minutes. Press all through a wide-meshed sieve, return to the fire, and thicken with a paste made of two tablespoons of cold water and two tablespoons of flour. Cook till thickened, stirring constantly, and serve.

Creole Egg-Rice Dish: Cook rice as above directed. Also boil six eggs hard in the shell, then remove shells and cut each egg in half. Spread the hot rice on a serving platter, dot it with the halved eggs, then pour over all this Onion Cream Sauce. Barely melt four tablespoons of butter, then remove from range and rub into it one-half cup of flour. Add a pinch of salt, a pinch of pepper, and return to heat. Stir in one cup of cold, sweet milk slowly, and cook till thickened. Flavor with one teaspoon of finely minced raw onion. Serve at once.

THE GOOD AND THE BAD

I have never seen a perfect tree. Or anything else that is perfect. There are too many elements of strife connected with this life for any of us to hope for perfection. But we may all strive for it!

The good in people makes me very much happier than the bad in them. And so I try to look for and hold to the good in my friend. I know that I have in me much that is not good, much that I would have removed from me if it were possible, but I do want to recognize that both the good and the bad are a part of all that I am.

I have no idea why it was that we were born to absorb both the good and the bad. But all through the facts of life this truth is demonstrated.

I have discovered, however, that whenever we play up our good it attracts and enlarges the good in others. The inspiring writer or worker uplifts all who read his real words or who see him work.

Every great enterprise is an example of aspiration that arose from the dream of some man or woman.

When I see the figure of some noted man in bronze I think of only the good in that man. Every day on my way to work I see many of these figures in the public park and I never pass one of them but what I think of some notable thing that

FOR THE BENEFIT OF HUMANITY.

We are all buffeted about. Life is hard at its best. There is nothing easy about living. But there is everything to make it worth while and our daily experiences are all the time telling us that every time we attempt something good we crush that in us which is bad.

How often I think of that great marble work of art by George Gray Barnard called "I Feel Two Natures Struggling Within Me." It is so expressive of every aspiring life.

Stevenson brought out the same idea in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." The other day I read in my newspaper an article by a noted man who said that we all entertained these two natures within us.

But it is the good in us all that makes the world so beautiful.

PRIMARY ELECTION TUESDAY-NOT HERE

Xenia was one of the few cities in the state in which an August primary election was not held Tuesday.

It was first thought a primary election would be necessary for the City Commission race in November because seven candidates filed declarations of candidacy.

The withdrawal from the race of Judge H. L. Smith, president of the commission, abolished the primary this year. The withdrawal was made in the interests of economy to the city and this action is said to have saved the city approximately $1,500.

TO WHITEN SKIN WITH LEMON

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter pint of the most wonderful skin whiteners, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also, as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.

SOAKED DIAMOND PREVENTS FRACAS

A hard rain Tuesday turned the Washington Park baseball diamond into a sea of mud and made the staging of the championship inter-city game Tuesday afternoon between the All-Stars of the Xenia Industrial League and the Pennsylvania Railroad nine, champions of the Greater Cincinnati Industrial League, impossible. It is announced.

The game has been continued until next Wednesday and local fans will not be deprived of the opportunity to witness the two nines in action, it is said.

Glass will probably pitch against Gentry, the Cincinnati moundman, next Wednesday.

Health Hints by the Father of Physical Culture

Upon food and air—life's main essentials—depends man's physical, mental and moral well being. Man is precisely what food makes him. All the millions of cells in his body have been built from the food he has eaten, and these cells are the foundation of his health and strength and vitality. From his food he derives his physical energy and his power of brain. There is no imaginable reason why anyone should be wanting in surplus power, or should not feel at all times full of vigor and energy, if he will but look to his food. The superb powers of health are within reach of all, and in more than a few cases the question of health is merely a question of food. Although the human race has been in existence for thousands of years, and has made marvelous development while conquering the forces of nature, the race has still to learn how to eat.

The food we eat furnishes elements which are necessary for the metabolism of the body, and improper food slowly but surely destroys life. Do you ever stop to think of your unfortunate stomach—of what it does for you, and of how you abuse it? You don't? You don't give it time to digest what you have put into it before you put another meal on top of the first. You eat fast and bolt your food, and as a consequence, you become dyspeptic, you have headache, your liver becomes sluggish, your skin yellow, and your lungs diseased; the heart palpitates, and nerves become overtaxed, and the mind incapable of normal activity. Then you resort to stomach tonics which are absolutely worthless, because in many cases they are merely chemical irritants, and a meal taken into the stomach after using them ferments and decomposes instead of digesting. When this occurs, the mass of decaying foodstuffs moves slowly down the intestinal canal, deranging in its course every function of the system.

Old age is brought nearer or retarded according to the different foods one ingests. In old age the joints become stiff and partial ossification of the cartilage and cartilaginous membranes of the body sets in. This is due to calcareous (limy) matter, which is carried into every part of the body by the circulation of the blood. This matter settles in the joints and arteries and permeates the cartilage of the body until the normally flexible veins and ligaments become hard and rigid.

EASTMAN REVIVES ANCIENT DANCING IN ENDOWED SCHOOL

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 12.—The aesthetic ideal of life held by the ancient Greeks, but long lost in the shuffle of modern civilization, may come into its own again if the new Eastman School of the Dance and Dramatic Action, formed as a part of the University of Rochester, is successful in its aims.

Rouben Mamoulian, formerly connected with the Moscow Art Theater, is the moving spirit in the new school, which owes its being to George Eastman, Kodak manufacturer and noted philanthropist, who has given millions to education.

Not only will the school provide courses in professional dancing, but it will aim to include the dance as a vital part in general university education, ranking with mathematics and philosophy.

The idea underlying the school is unique for this age, Mamoulian says, but it is really very old. It embodies the Greek conception of life as ruled by rhythm and grace, with rules and commandments, given lesser stress. By the practice of this ideal, according to the school director, character and self control are gained and habits are formed of universal value to health and citizenship.

Mamoulian hopes to reunite the two muses of the dance and the drama, which were well nigh inseparable in Greek life.

BRINGING UP FATHER

MICHAEL'S MARRIAGE

By MICHAEL

CHAPTER 120.

This beautiful creature, radiant as a diamond in a coalbuck, stood before him as calm and unmoved as if she had known Michael all her life. But he could only continue to stare, and say: "I—I want to see your mother."

"Maw isn't here."

Her illiterate voice grated on him.

"Uh—I wanted to see her about the accident she was in yesterday. They told me at the hospital that she had gone home."

"She was here, but she had to go back to work. The people sent for her asd that if she didn't come they'd have to get somebody else."

"I see." His mind was not upon Mrs. Horner, but upon this girl. He didn't think of her as Mrs. Horner's daughter. The connection was too incongruous.

"When are you expecting her back?"

"She comes home about six o'clock in the evenin'."

"Can you tell me where she works?"

"The girl gave the name of a laundry."

"Do you work, too?" he was emboldened to ask.

"I haven't any job now," she replied, wistfully.

"Are you a stenographer?"

"No. I just worked in the ten cent store."

"I see."

Why was he asking her these questions? He turned to go, but was held, fascinated.

"Are you Mrs. Horner's daughter?"

"Well, no. She's my aunt."

"Do you live with her—I mean are you just visiting?"
